GOOD ON SUNDAYS

There are many persons of whom it may be truthfully said that they are not as bad all the time as they are part of the times which is to say that they have a Sunday piety which breaks the record of their evil conduct.

There are cities which are like individuals—they have Sunday religion. With out attributing deliberate vicious intentions to the cities, we have Macon, Ga., as a typical example. That well-fangled nickel-snatching device recently installed under the guise of traffic control is the cause of these rumination.

your way. The fine for parking there is $5; you ought to have put a nickel in that box when you parked. Remember that." Then she walked down to the street and showed us exactly how to work the meter; she put our nickel in and pulled the lever which we thought was a hitch-hike handle—and our nickel was gone. But it was well invested—the happiest nickel we ever spent.

Now, whereas three "bossy" elderly ladies had commanded us to park there and had started all that trouble, this happy, smiling Fanny Squere—the lady who gives "aid to the lovers"—had rescued us. The fellow who went "down to Jericho" found a friend who came to his rescue. That friend has been the synonym of verse and song for two thousand years. If we live that long, we'll be singing all those years about the friend we found in Macon.

But what we started to say to the outcast was that no individual or municipality is as bad all the time as he or it is part of the time. On Sunday at noon we drove back into the identical parking space. Casually we drew out our nickel for the slot and asked the boy to show us how to work the machine. "Mister, you don't have to put a nickel in there on Sunday," he informed us. We gave him the nickel for his friendly smile.

And left Macon in perfect good humor with all the world. Somehow, we are glad they had that meter system—it provided a parking space for us which we could not have found except for that new-fangled nickel-snatching device which ran somebody else away.

EVILS OF SPOILS SYSTEM CITED

Cleveland Disgusted When President As Taft Says "Government is One for Jobholders."

The spoils system in government has been decried for years by many of America's outstanding statesmen and for years they have called for civil service in city, county, state and federal government, yet little progress has been made to eliminate a system which yearly has cost the country a billion dollars.

Abraham Lincoln, beholding a crowd of political job-seekers said, "There you see something which is a danger to the republic than the Rebellion."

Civil service has been urged for August city employees by the Central Labor Union.

A spokesman for the Connecticut Merit System Association has revealed that "a majority of the 3,275,000 national, state and local government employees throughout the United States who cost the taxpayers $4,920,954,000 for salaries only, are political appointees. They literally control our government machinery from the town council to the national convention."

Of the delegates to a recent political convention, 64 per cent indicated by a newspaper poll, were government jobholders."

Said Grover Cleveland: "This pernicious spoils system gives rise to an office-seeking class who in their greed to obtain office by the use of personal advantage, arrogate to themselves an interference with the will of the people which results in the servants of the people dictating to the masters. . . . All this time, like a nightmare, this dreadful, damnable in defense of life are seldom invoked. Those who have the most speed—and, therefore, most dangerous—are the men and youths who are calculated to best control an automobile. They are the younger and stronger of our manhood, calculated to think and act quickly in an emergency; it is they who would have to apply for drivers' licenses and receive them. It is they or their kind who almost always are in the thick of automobile tragedies. Drivers' licenses would add to them another expense, but it would not entail greater responsibility to be cautious in their driving. The love of one's life is the highest incentive to care, and those reckless, able-bodied youngsters do not even care for their own lives.

What then is the remedy. If the causes are speed, liquor and dangerous highways, commence to eliminate liquor, curves and speed. Why pile on another tax?

CHILDLESS PAIRS ATTRACT STORK

Adoption of Baby Sure to Draw Favorable Notice from Fabled Bird.

Cold Spring Harbor, N. Y., Nov. 15.—The stork is attracted to childless couples if they adopt a young child.

This old-time fairy tale belief that an adoption will relieve infertility is given scientific support by H. F. Perkins, of the University of Vermont, in a study of 273 childless couples who adopted children.

"The 273 cases," he reports in the Eugenics News the publication of the Eugenic Research Association, "are perhaps too small in numbers to warrant final conclusions. There does appear to be a basis in fact for the popular belief that the adoption of a child by a childless couple does sometimes, and not infrequently, help to overcome infertility."

He says there are "probably" many cases of failure, but explains the "probability" by stating that he has seen a number of couples who have adopted children. Others had been for a time worried for fear of children too soon for their economic status.

"Overanxiety," he states, "is as complete a block to pregnancy as are other emotional strains. A couple may be rendered unfruitful because of the concern lest a child be born, and still remain unfruitful after conditions improve and they become desirous of parenthood."

More direct physical reasons are found in the endocrine gland system, whose relation to production, Mr. Perkins says, is just beginning to be understood.

"Politicians are literally hounded to death by job seekers and the governmental employee is so worried over political uncertainties that he either cannot work effectively or is encouraged to plunder his office while the opportunity affords. This is what the taxpayers pay for."

The man with the "big stick," Theodore Roosevelt, declared: "The man who debauches our public life by the corrupt use of his office as spoils is a greater foe to our well-being as a nation than is even the defaulting cashier of a bank or the betrayer of a private trust."

In a poll recently conducted by the American Institute of Public Affairs 88 per cent of those replying expressed their disapproval of the spoils system and their desire for the merit system.

At Smith, before "taking a walk," told the New York City Realty Board in 1931: "Let's stop all this hot air about the reduction of taxes and the cost of government and get down to the root of the evil. There are two things that don't fit together—political patronage and the reduction in the cost of government."

STATSBORO MUSIC CLUB PRESENT "THE MESSIAH"

On next Sunday afternoon, Dec. 13, at 4 o'clock, at the College auditorium, the Statesboro Music Club will give a public performance of the oratorio, "The Messiah," by Handel. The oratorio will be given in concert form, is recognized as one of the greatest ever written, and contains the famous "Hallelujah Chorus." It was presented for the first time in Dublin in the 18th century, with the king of England in the audience. He was so impressed with the majesty of the "Hallelujah Chorus" that he rose to his feet and remained standing to the end. Naturally the entire audience also stood, and ever since it has been the custom for audiences to stand during the rendition of the "Hallelujah Chorus." This is the only musical composition outside of patriotic songs which always brings audiences to their feet.
The program for Sunday afternoon is as follows:
"Comfort Ye My People," soprano solo—Mrs. Clifford. Contralto—Miss Marie Wood.
"Thou that Tellest Good Tidings," quartet—Mesdames Cone, Hanner, Henderson, Holland.
"I Know that My Redeemer is Born," chorus directed by Mrs. E. C. Olliff.
"Shepherd's Lament," "Lo, the Angel of the Lord," "The Angel Said Unto Them," "Suddenly With the Angel," soprano solo—Mrs. Z. S. Henderson.
"Glory to God," directed by Mrs. Barnes.
"Rejoice Greatly, O, Daughter of Zion," vocal solo—Mrs. Beane.
"Why do the Nations Rage," baritone solo—William Deal.
"I Know that My Redeemer is Born," soprano solo—Mrs. C. B. Mathews.
"The Hallelujah Chorus."
Everyone is cordially invited to be present for this program.

WOMAN'S CLUB

The monthly meeting of the Woman's Club will be held Thursday, December 17, at 3 p. m. at the club room. A Christmas program will be rendered under the direction of the fine arts committee.

BENEFIT BRIDGE

The fine arts committee began with a bridge party Tuesday afternoon and evening at the Woman's Club home. The club room was artistically decorated with evergreen, autumn foliage and Christmas wreaths. At each end of the room long tables were covered with white lace cloths on which were placed tall candelabra holding red candles. The atmosphere of the room was most festive. A small Christmas tree was on one side and holly decorations were at the windows.
In one group Mrs. Harvey D. Brannen entertained the Mystery club and other guests, making four tables of players. The prizes were won by Mrs. E. C. Olliff for club high, Mrs. J. H. Brett for visitor's high, Mrs. Cecil Brannen for low, and Mrs. Dan Lester for cut. Each received valuable aprons.
The Tuesday bridge club was entertained by Mrs. H. P. Jones. Her prizes were won by Mrs. Olin Smith and Mrs. C. P. Olliff, each of whom received hand-made aprons.
Mrs. Walter Aldred Jr. and Miss Mary Mathews entertained jointly the three O.C.C.s and other guests, making five tables of players, honoring Mrs. Phil Arley, to whom they presented lingerie. Perfume for their club prize went to Mrs. Robert Donaldson, and sashet for visitors to Mrs. Lavinia Simmons. A vase for cut was given Mrs. Waldo Floyd.
A number of other individual tables played at Dutch parties, making fifteen tables for the afternoon.
Prizes awarded by the committee for the afternoon party were won by Mrs. Robert Donaldson, who won high score and received a lamp; a cutex set for low went to Mrs. Gilbert Cone, and a compact for cut to Mrs. Henry Ellis. An ash tray set for high prize in the evening was won by Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Simmons, and a hat brush for low went to Mrs. Gilbert Cone. At both parties hot tea was served.

THEATRE PARTY

Miss Mary Mathews, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Shuman, entertained thirty-eight of her classmates and friends Monday afternoon with a matinee party in celebration of her birthday. The children gathered at the home on Savannah avenue for an hour of play before going to the show to see Shirley Temple in "Dimples." Gaynelle Stockdale and E. L. Mikell were winners in a Shirley Temple contest, and were given candy.
Mrs. Shuman was assisted by Mrs. L. J. Shuman Jr. in serving the dainty refreshments.
